

Support a young conservationist

Be a stakeholder in facilitating tomorrow's conservation task force

There are many students and early career scientists in the Asia Pacific region who are motivated and hard working yet lacking opportunities for knowledge sharing due to financial constraints. ATBC-AP 2019 in Sri Lanka provides an ideal platform for them to gather and refine their future pathways.

It would be really encouraging if sponsorship opportunities are available for these budding scientists. This is a request for those interested in supporting young scientists in the region where you could opt to support one or a few participants.

You can select the country, whether it is a young professional or a student you are supporting and whether you can support registration or the full package inclusive of meals and accommodation (link to registration, accommodation). With your permission, the donor's name could be included in the proceedings book.
